The Živa Award

The founder of the Živa Award is the Forum of Slavic Cultures. It was established in 2012 by an expert group of the countries of the Forum of Slavic Cultures (FSK). It is named after the Slavic goddess Živa (known also as Žiwia, Siva, Sieba or Razivia), representing the principle of life, beauty, vitality and fertility - thus characteristics that are also embodied in Slavic cultures.

Dr. Andreja Rihter, the director of the Forum of Slavic Cultures, has made the following statement: "The Živa Award reveals the sensibility of Slavic museums and for the preservation, recognition and presentation of their cultural heritage. It recognizes the efforts of the small or large, national or local, or other types of museums, which are aware that cultural assets and values present essential investment for the present and the future."

The Živa Award project partners are European Museum Academy (EMA) and numerous national museum institutions.

The Forum of Slavic Cultures (FSK)

The Forum of Slavic Cultures (FSK) is a non-profit and non-governmental organisation connecting the Slavic countries of Belarus, Bulgaria, Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Czech Republic, Montenegro, Croatia, Poland, Russia, North Macedonia, Slovakia, Slovenia, Serbia and Ukraine. Its inception was prompted by the accession of Slavic countries to the European Union in 2004.

The FSK serves as an intersection of future partnerships. Its activities contribute to the positioning of Slavic cultures on the map of the world and to better understanding of the diversity of Europe today as promoted by the Council of Europe. It promotes intercultural dialogue at the global level. In our changing world it actively represents Slavic cultures with their characteristics

The Purpose of the Živa Award

The greatest value of the Živa Award aims at identifying, preserving and promoting the best practices of Slavic museums and heritage sites in Slavic countries, their cultural heritage— movable and immovable, tangible and intangible.

The Živa Award is an important transnational cultural platform, which fosters the dialogue, communication and networking, exchange of ideas, knowledge and experiences in view of: museums leadership, protection and promotion of museum collections and their diversity, museum's social role, services and engagement towards the needs of public by encouraging innovation, creativity, participation and inclusion.

Intangible heritage plays a very important role in the mission of today's museums. Activities related to intangible heritage have the unique power to reach new audiences, connect museums with communities, engage visitors in creative learning, and foster a fruitful exchange of knowledge and skills between museum and its visitors.

The Živa Award contains a truly multi-Slavic cultural dimension that highlights the progress and changes in museums of Slavic countries in all their diversity, embracing the wealth of their joint operation, communication and action. Within the framework of the Slavic museums entering the Živa Award competition, the number of museums, their diverse approaches and achievements are growing from year to year and has since the first Živa Award in 2014 almost tripled.
